Preacher and Bride Killed.

The Rev. Bernard R. Green and bride were killed last Thursday night in a railroad wreck near Roanoke, Va. Rev. Green was a graduate of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, class of 1913. They were on their way to Crewe, Va., to visit relatives. Mrs. Green was a Louisville girl. Five persons lost their lives and eight were injured in the wreck.

Died From Burns.

Mrs. Fanny Williams, aged 82 years, pioneer resident of Huntington, died Sunday evening at her home six days before the sixtieth anniversary of her wedding to William Williams, who has been critically ill for some time, and does not know of the death of his wife. Mrs. Williams sustained fatal burns a week ago when her dress caught fire while she was in the sick room, mistaking for the needs of her husband, who is 84 years old. Mr. Williams has been in a semi-conscious condition for some time, and although he was told of the death of his wife, did not seem to be able to comprehend the tragedy that had come to his household.

Walter Gipson Killed.

Walter Gipson, of Orange, Va., aged 32, was almost instantly killed last Wednesday near Burch, W. Va., where he was employed by the contractor on the county road. A large stone, rolling down an embankment, struck him, inflicting injuries from which he died before medical aid could reach him.

Logan Pastor Operated On.

Rev. C. C. Perkins, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, at Logan, was operated on at a Huntington hospital. The operation was for the removal of a tumor from his neck, where it had been growing for several months. The case was an unusual one and several surgeons watched the operation. Mr. Perkins stood the ordeal well and a speedy recovery is expected.

PRESTONSBURG

Still Captured.

Sheriff Kendall Moore and deputies and Judge Ed Hill went to Beaver near Maytown Dec. 16 and captured a 60-gallon copper still and three barrels of mash. Willie D. Hopkins and Rev. John Hopkins, brothers, were arrested and placed under bond for trial on December 20. The outfit was complete in every detail, and the copper still was brought to town and put on exhibition.

COMMERCIAL ACCOUNTS

Security, system, accuracy and dispatch—these qualities in a banking service are demanded by those who carry commercial accounts.

This Bank has grown steadily for sixteen years because it supplied service of this type. Moreover, sharing as it does in the strength and unity of the Federal Reserve System, it is enabled to extend to its customers the most satisfactory accommodations, and to afford, at the same time, that assurance of safety which national supervision brings.

PIKEVILLE

New Sub-Station Located Here.

M. A. Maxwell, of the Kentucky & West Virginia Power Co. is in town this week arranging for the location of the terminal sub-station of the 88,000 volt Logan, Sprigg, Pikeville power line now under construction. From this sub-station to be located at Pikeville or vicinity, power lines will radiate covering the entire coal field of the Big Sandy and adjoining creeks. Ultimately the line will extend from Pikeville to Hazard interconnecting the three main power plants of the company. The capacity of these plants is now being augmented by the addition of 20,000 kilowatts in tube generators. Mr. Maxwell reports that construction of both plant and lines is proceeding rapidly and that power should be delivered at Pikeville within six months.

New Concern.

Mr. George E. Butler, manager of the Big Sandy Electrical & Repair Co., arrived in Pikeville a few days ago, to equip the new plant, the machinery of which is in transit. Mr. Butler states that electrical and mechanical equipment has been purchased capable of taking care of all kind of repairs to farm equipment; an up-to-date machine shop equipped with lathes and other machine tools, will supplement the electrical shop and armature repair department.

ARMY REMOUNT BOARD AT WORK

NEW ACTIVITY OF GOVERNMENT
HAS ALREADY DISTRIBUTED FIFTY STALLIONS.

MEMBERS AGREE ON POLICY

Runners and Trotters Are Best Types, and Racing Should be Encouraged to the End that Production Shall be Continuous.

Army Remount.

The new Army Remount Board, which has undertaken the task of providing the forces of national defense with horses of the proper sort, has established headquarters in Washington and begun functioning. Already this board, which is made up of a mixed military and civilian personnel, has distributed through the country, in districts suited to the quick production of half-bred horses of robust types, the fifty odd thoroughbred stallions, most of them gifts to the government of persons and persons interested in racing and thoroughbred production, that had previously been acquired by the war department through the remount board that was called into being during the progress of the great war.

The military members of the permanent remount board are Major General William G. Snow and Jesse McEl, Colonel F. S. Armstrong, John S. Fair, Bruce Palmer and George H. Cannon, Lieutenant Colonel John P. Canby and Major Hayden Channing. Major Channing will not be classed as a military representative on the board. When he leaves the service, which he entered for the term of the war, he will become one of New England's civilian representatives.

Well-Known Men on Board.

The civilian members of the remount board are Major August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club of New York, and one of the foremost thoroughbred producers of the United States; Dr. John H. Muller, of Washington; Arthur H. Hancock, proprietor of the Ellerslie stud, of Virginia, and the Chalmers stud, of Kentucky; and another great thoroughbred producer, his Ellerslie and Chalmers yearlings having fetched a total of more than $150,000 at the recent Saratoga sales; F. Ambrose Clark, of New York; Algernon Dainfield, the assistant secretary of the Jockey Club; Major Robert E. Strawbridge, of Pennsylvania; Thomas Hitchcock, of New York, and Captain Philip M. Walker, of Virginia. Captain Walker, a retired officer of the regular service of the United States army, is a breeder of thoroughbreds in Clarke county, Virginia.

The military personnel of this board is not to be permanent. Instead of picking the men best fitted by knowledge and experience for the work of directing, in conjunction with the civilian membership, the production of horses for the three great combat branches of the military service—cavalry, artillery and transport—and giving them permanent billets, the war department has intimated that it must for fear of violating a century-old tradition, shift the military members of the board from time to time so as to give other officers their opportunities. This sort of rotation is calculated to prove wasteful and ineffective, but war departments the world over are sticklers for traditional routine and there is not help for it.

Two Types of Horses.

The situation, as regards the work of the United States Army Remount Board may be saved by permanent civilian membership. There can be no question of the sound sense and practical knowledge of breeds of horses and of their general and specific usefulness of the civilian members of the board. To the success of Major Belmont, whose Nursery stud has been represented on American tracks this season by Lucille, the country's greatest thoroughbred of mature years; by Man O'War, the outstanding champion among the two-year-olds, and by Mad Hatter; and of Mr. Hancock, reference has already been made. Major Hitchcock has won distinction these twenty-five years as a developer of cross-country performers. Mr. Clark, like Mr. Hitchcock, has been associated with steeplechasing in the east, and he has in the course of the last two years rendered signal service and without compensation to the army as a civilian member of the war-time remount board. Major Strawbridge and Major Channing have spent the better part of a quarter of a century developing horses of the so-called hunter type, which are the sort that have rendered the most efficient service to the armies of France and England in the world struggle for liberty. Since the civilian membership is to be permanent it is inevitable that the influence of the civilian members will be powerful, if it is not controlling, in the shaping of the policy of the remount board.

Today the remount board, as regards both the military and civilian elements, is a unit on the proposition that the association between effective national defense and the two types of horses that have not succumbed to the overwhelming competition of the automobile and the motor truck, which Americans call thoroughbreds—the runner and the trotter—is of sovereign importance. The board is agreed to a man that not only must there be no farther interference through the agency of legislation hostile to horse racing, state or national, with the continuous production of runners and trotters, but that the government must find a means, as was suggested by the bureau of animal industry as far back as 1911, of stimulating the production of running and trotting types.

Racing to be Encouraged.

If the running and trotting types were not the only light types available for the work of creating a special army horse, it would be necessary to give them the biggest roles in the scheme of military horse supply because they are tougher and more enduring than other types. The life of the thoroughbred runner, independently of casualties, in France between 1914 and 1918, was twenty-one days. The life of the half-bred was about seventeen days. The life of the trotter was about fifteen days. The ordinary cold-blooded horse lasted no more than four or five days. The trotter more nearly approaches the so-called running thoroughbred in quality than any other light horse known in this or in any other country, because the basic stock of the trotting and pacing families was thoroughbred. The trotting and pacing families were founded about a century ago by the thoroughbred stallions Messenger and Mambrino, and their bottom has been sustained from time to time by fresh infusions of thoroughbred blood, mainly on the distaff side.

There are more thoroughbred runners and trotters available for this work of national defense than there are horses of other breeds because the maintenance of running and harness racing by individual enterprise, in spite of the difficulties of harness and harness racing legislation in various parts of the country, has served to make the continued production of thoroughbred runners and trotters profitable to farmers and stockmen. The farm tractor and the automobile and the motor truck have practically put out of commission the other light types which formerly were considered serviceable in a military sense. The only horses farmers are breeding nowadays in considerable numbers are the heavy draught types, because it is for these types only that a profitable market can be found.—Advt.
